

BEAUJOLAIS NOUVEAU - NOVEMBER 21, 1985

"Beaujolais harvest starting; amount is expected to be off but quality to be very good" New York Times headline, September 18, 1985. November 21, 1985 is the first day that the world will be able to drink the 1985 Beaujolais Nouveau. Frenchmen will drink it in the cafes of Paris on the 21st, and now you can drink the same 1985 Beaujolais Nouveau in Richmond on the 21st. J. Emerson, Inc. has purchased a few cases of Georges DuBoeuf 1985 Beaujolais Nouveau - to be flown on the Concorde, then driven to Richmond. The first tasting will be at a private party at O'Malley's (603 East Main Street) from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

The 1985 Beaujolais Nouveau will be poured as guests enjoy their special vantage of the bicycle race on main street. O'Malley's kitchen will serve regional hors d'oeuvres to complement the wine. Be part of a new Richmond tradition. This event must be limited to only seventy-five invited guests. Invitations may be secured from J. Emerson, Inc. - a six dollar fee will help defray the cost of the wine and food for this exclusive Beaujolais Nouveau tasting.
